

The Philadelphia Centennial.

We trust that the letter of Professor M. L. of the University, on this subject was well considered by our readers. Virginia should be properly represented at the Centennial. The preparations in Philadelphia for the occasion are of the most extensive and systematic character. All the States have been considered and provided for. Those of the South are indeed poor, and probably cannot equal their northern sisters in style, but they can make show that will, nevertheless, do them credit, and, furthermore, materially advance their welfare.

Virginia should be in the front rank. She has the natural resources for a grand exhibition. Such an exhibition would be auxiliary to plans for inviting immigrants amongst us. There could be no better advertisement of the inducements to immigration afforded by Virginia.

Therefore, we do not suppose for a moment that Virginia will absent herself from the Centennial. If she is there, no Virginian can tolerate the idea that she should be there in a manner not altogether creditable to her. As unity and combination are necessary to doing the thing properly, we are clearly of opinion that the State itself should provide for the management of the affair. The enterprise cannot be conducted with the best advantage unless it is under one control. And we trust the Legislature will take up the subject immediately its session begins; for time will be so very short that not a moment should be lost. We trust that members will consider the matter well before they come to Richmond, so that they may be prepared to act promptly.

"The President Undismayed."

Thus says the New York Herald, one of the hard money organs. And how does he perceive that he is undismayed? We suppose by his firmness in standing by the hard money party, and his determination to veto any bill that repeals the resumption act. Ah! and is that the proof of his being undismayed? Well, we shall probably see more on this point.

But why should the President be dismayed at all? If he is about ending his presidential service he has nothing to fear from public opinion. He has the flattery of the gold gamblers and the moneyed community, and all the ease and comfort that luxury, and cigars, and horses, and dogs can give him. What more does he want? These constitute the sum of his wishes and tastes; and give him these and "peace," and let the world wag! Who is dismayed? Not he.

But suppose he wants to be President for another term, does that make him afraid of the people? Put him in the mood to be dismayed? Not at all. He seeks not the third term from the people, for he, he knows, will never give it to him. He looks to the money-power and the negroes for that; and if he is really bent upon it, why, what rare combination may lack in force can be readily summed up by the executive power which is in his hands.

"Undismayed?" Nonsense. What can dismay him? Not the people; he has really little regard for them. He is averse to large multitudes, and become so sick of that which he encountered at one of the Massachusetts centennials that, like the goat who took a drink of whiskey, he could not be induced to repeat the dose.

The New York Herald preached a crusade against Caesarism, and now is so pleased at GRANT'S hard-money policy that it appears to be sliding into the scheme for the third term through the money-power.

We are not decided in our own opinion as to what GRANT wants. He is an enigma. His sensibilities are of a kind that would logically justify the opinion that he would prefer a luxurious, quiet life to a struggle for a third term, and to holding a third term with all the cares and troubles it might bring upon him. On the other hand, he may have the ambition to hold the presidency longer than even Washington, and to be its occupant, reflected on the centennial of the "life of the republic," though we hardly suppose that a man never guilty of a sentiment could think of so trifling a matter. Be it as it may, if GRANT wants to be President for a third term he is not "a-going" to have any "child's play" about it.

Letter-writers constantly intimate that GRANT will compel the Democrats to shoulder the cause of "inflation." In that attempt he will assuredly force an immense number of his own party to join the Democrats, and when he closes the door upon what he and his tricky followers choose to call "inflationists" he will find the biggest crowd outside. They ask that large are not "inflationists?" They ask that the resumption act be repealed, that duties be paid in greenbacks instead of coin, and that otherwise things be left where they are. Is that "inflation?" It is false to say so.

The people of this country are not lost to their control over currency affairs, and on this matter of the currency, unless we deceive ourselves, they will take care that they are not handed over to the Skylocks. They will not consent to a forced resumption before the country is prepared for it. For that would, as all know, bring a severe shock upon the country. The sudden transition of paper money from a discount below gold to a par with it would cause such a shrinkage of values as to ruin thousands of people. This will not be permitted, we are sure. When the time comes the state of the country will be such that Congress will not support the rigid intentions of the President. When that time comes we shall see who is "dismayed."

"Memorable; which way shall I fly?"

The distressed Administration organ, contemplating Mississippi affairs, in desperation says:

"The machinations of the Democracy to prevent a full, free, and legal registration of voters are but half told. Meanwhile the Government spends thousands of dollars to vindicate an insignificant consul from constructive insult in Tripoli; but is powerless to protect the lives and rights of its citizens on their native soil. The weak-kneed Republican press of the country join with the opposition in misrepresenting the facts of the case, and another State is assailed by the agencies of brutal butchery, assassination, riot, and intimidation to the Republican party."

Fairs.—Several fairs are held this fall in Southwest Virginia.

A fair in Abingdon, Washington county, is concluded to-day. It commenced on Wednesday.

Wytheville holds her annual fair on the 6th, 7th, and 8th of October.

The Virginia and Tennessee Border Fair will be held at Bristol on September 28th, 29th, and 30th, and October 1st. It will be a spirited meeting. Fine preparation is made for it. We are indebted to the Society for a polite invitation, which we much regret that we cannot make available.

We find the following remarkable article, purporting to be from a Virginia Republican, in the Evening Journal of this city. That paper does not name its author. It certainly contains very striking opinions for those of a Republican, and, indeed, very sound logic, came it from whom it might:

A Virginia Republican on Republicanism.

With small cause for division the people of Virginia are divided into two political organizations. With party platforms more alike than two brothers-in-law, almost identical in their aims and objects, and yet so different in their methods of attaining them, that they would be reason in the opposition. If they are not divided on principle, then what does divide them? Nothing but a deep and unalterable conviction that the banding of the colored people into a solid mass under Republican leadership threatened to place the State Government in the hands and under the control of inexperienced and unlettered people. The mass of our people believe that such a revolution in the history of Virginia was not best, hence the white people combined to prevent it. The colored people, on the other hand, were not hostile to the negro, nor to the Republican party, that induced them to consolidate. All the vigor and success of the Conservative party is owing to the above. They have not made war on the principles of the Republican party, but on some of its methods. As many individual Republicans are as good as the party, and it is unquestionably, it is this which does patriotism require at the hands of the resident northern and native white and colored Republicans? Simply an abandonment of their present skeleton of an organization. Let them once the danger of the Conservative party is gone, new party structures arise, each made up of intelligence and each state in the opinion of our people, to assume control of State Government. This done, and the attention of the best element of the State will be directed to the up-building of interests that lie unsecured.

There is no opposition to northern men in Virginia because of their being born in that locality, nor is there any to colored men because of their color. If there is any, it is insignificant. They are both opposed when they combine to seek to control public affairs, for the reason that the native white element fear to experiment in such matters by entrusting to an unlettered race the control of their State, and they never will do it, and cannot be coerced on that ground by reasonable people.

To the northern gentlemen who have made the bones here we say, abandon your alliance with the colored people under the present Republican organization, and that moment you will feel the change; for you have been under bans by reason of your alliance with the natives an element of corruption and danger to the State. The colored man is not a race support white men, for the creature is under control of the creator in politics. To the native white Republicans we say, abandon your selfishness, and that your principles are necessarily wrong, but that it is a patriotic duty so to do. To all these elements of the Republican party we put an earnest appeal, because a failure to do so we have indicated prevents an inkling of what you and your allies to our State. They are and have the champion of the organization of the Conservative party crying on the heels of carpet-baggers and negroes, and they imagine that the people of Virginia are hostile to northern settlers and negroes because of their nativity and color. It is not true, but the state is injured by reason of that fact; and since there seems to be but one way out of our difficulties, why not do as suggested; and the result will be commensurate with the wishes and wants of the real people of Virginia, then white and colored people live on God's earth, in the universal opinion of Christendom.

RAILROAD PROMPTNESS, FINANCIALLY.—We observe in the Philadelphia papers an advertisement giving notice that Thomas Scott and Mathew Baird will pay before maturity the obligations of the Texas and Pacific Railway Construction Company containing their endorsement. The Philadelphia Times says of this advertisement:

"These gentlemen, with others, organized and prosecuted the construction of a second trans-continental railway to connect the Eastern and Western States, and invested their own private capital in it. When pressing the enterprise with great energy the panic of 1873 overtook them, loaded with individual guarantees made on the faith of pending negotiations abroad, and they were compelled to suspend, and ask assistance to save themselves and their undertaking from bankruptcy. The faith in the resources and integrity of the men secured them the indulgence they asked for; since when they have met every obligation as it matured, and now desire to be enabled to anticipate the payment of their matured obligations to the satisfaction of interest. Men of less energy and self-reliance, even with their resources, might have quailed under the embarrassments thrown upon them by the sudden failure of all foreign negotiations in September, 1873; but both are the architects of a fortune, and have met every obligation in the country. JOHN E. DOHERTY, au 22-cod3m 822 Main street."

DANVILLE AND NEW RIVER RAILROAD.—The county subscription in Henry county to the Danville and New River railroad has been carried by a vote of 1,209 to 217. Henry besides makes individual subscriptions to the stock of the company of $85,000, which it is hoped will be increased to $100,000.
